

Mrs. McCullough Is Asphyxiated When Taken Ill

Coroner Humiston Reports Death of John Street Woman Is Caused by Dizzy Spell
Face Is Burned

Coroner Says One Side of Face Burned, Indicating Range Lighted

An invitation to dinner Thursday afternoon led to the finding of the dead body of Mrs. Ann Leonard McCullough, 42, lying across the gas stove in the kitchen of her apartment at 23 John street.

Death was due to accidental asphyxiation from illuminating gas from the gas range according to the verdict rendered by Coroner Howard B. Humiston of Kerhonkson at the close of an exhaustive examination.

Coroner Humiston said that Mrs. McCullough suffered a burn on left side of her head, near the temple, and it was evident that when stricken she had fallen on the gas range, extinguishing the flame on the burner causing gas to flow from the still open jet.

The coroner said that the investigation showed that Mrs. McCullough, who has been in ill health, was subject to dizzy spells, and that undoubtedly she was seized with a spell while in the kitchen and fell unconscious across the stove. When found gas was pouring from an open jet in the gas range.

Earlier on Thursday Mrs. McCullough telephoned Mrs. Robert L. Rice of 139 Pine Grove avenue, inviting her to call and have dinner with her. In response to the invitation Mrs. Rice called at the apartment about 4:45 o'clock that afternoon and found the kitchen filled with gas and her friend's body stretched across the gas stove.

Mrs. Rice immediately gave the alarm and Dr. William S. Bush, who had been attending Mrs. McCullough during her illness, responded. The emergency crew of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation was also called and worked for four hours in a futile attempt to revive Mrs. McCullough.

Police Are Called
District Attorney N. LeVan Haver and Coroner Humiston were called and made an investigation assisted by Patrolmen Howard Kinch, William J. Reardon, William Hess and Leonard.

As a result of the investigation the police fixed the time of the tragedy as shortly after 2 o'clock, for it was at that time that Mrs. McCullough had called Mrs. Rice on the telephone and invited her to have dinner with her.

Mrs. McCullough, who was employed as a clerk in the Herzog hardware store on Wall street, had been ill for some time and had not been working lately owing to illness. Recently she has been hospitalized for three days.

Surviving are her father, Thomas P. Leonard; four brothers, Thomas, James and Frank Leonard; and three sisters, Miss Katherine A. Leonard, Mrs. Philip Maurer of Taneek, N. J., and Mrs. Gertrude Cosgrove of Boston, Mass.

The funeral will be held from the Henry J. Bruck Home for Funerals, 27 Smith avenue, Monday at 8 o'clock, at St. Joseph's Church where a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of her soul at 9 o'clock. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Liberals Lead

A.L.P. Has New Bosses

New York, March 1 (AP)—A liberal faction has gained control of the American Labor Party in New York county.

The faction, at a party convention last night, elected a slate of executive committee members over the opposition of a conservative faction with which it split last October. The schism followed a fight over a state committee resolution denouncing Communism.

Following the split, two county executive committees were elected, and each claimed to be "official." The convention last night was held at the behest of the supreme count, which appointed a temporary chairman, Herman Hoffman.

Those elected: Eugene P. Connolly, chairman of the Taxicab Workers' organizing committee (CIO); chairman: Ross Kenyon, secretary; and Herman Shulmin, theatrical producer, treasurer.

The liberal faction also elected the convention's permanent chairman, Samuel M. Blinken, who defeated the conservative candidate, Silvio Bottini, 445 to 314.

Fire Destroys Big Hudson River Boat With $300,000 Loss
Marlborough Fire Occurs Early This Morning at Rosoff Dock; Cause Unknown

Fire of undetermined origin burned the Hudson River Night Line's steamship "The New Yorker," formerly the "Trojan," to its hull early this morning off the dock of the Rosoff Sand and Gravel Co., at Marlborough.

A rough estimate of the damage to the steamer docked for the winter was between $250,000 and $300,000, boatmen said.

John Walkup of Newburgh, one of the Rosoff Co. watchmen saw the fire on the boat about 3:45 o'clock and notified the Marlborough Fire Department.

Before the fireman arrived to play four streams of water on the New Yorker, the steamer was engulfed in a strong blaze, which threatened the Rensselaer, docked near it for the winter.

A northwest wind fanned the flames which lit up the sky for miles around, but later changed, blowing away from the Rensselaer, helping to save the craft.

The Marlborough firemen, 18 strong, fought the blaze valiantly and part of them remained to keep two streams on the hull of the boat up till noon today to prevent rekindling of the flames.

Origin Undetermined
Captain John Lynn of the Marlborough Fire Department said the origin of the fire was undetermined and was unable to give the exact amount of the damage, except for the figures named by boatmen who knew the boat.

The damage will be made up partially by insurance, it was said, but not to the full extent of the total loss.

Thirty-two years ago, the New Yorker was built at the T. S. Marvel shipyard in Newburgh and launched on October 20, as the Trojan. In 1926 it was rammed by a British steamer off Peekskill and underwent repairs.

When the World's Fair was opened, The New Yorker was used for a time as an excursion boat, but after a short-lived run for this purpose, it was turned into a passenger-freighter for the New York to Albany run on the Night Line.

About two years ago fire destroyed the steamer Benjamin B. Odell at the same dock in Marlborough.

'Amazing' and 'Dubious'

British Say Nazi Planes Bomb Ships At Thames Estuary

Berlin, However, Declares Vessels Were Warships or Armed Convoys; Anglo Reports Differ

One Man Is Killed

Italian Steamer Is Mined in North Sea and 11 Are Missing

London, March 1 (AP)—German air raiders attacked trawlers described as fishing boats and other shipping along the east coast of Britain from Yorkshire to the Thames estuary today.

(It was announced in Berlin that German bombers attacked "numerous" British warships, convoys and armed merchantmen today, dispersing a convoy and sinking several large ships.)

A British pursuit plane drove off planes which bombed and machine-gunned the fishing boat Courage, British reports said. Several boats described as fishing trawlers were attacked off Yorkshire.

A trawler and a drifter went to the aid of a vessel which sent an SOS and a Norwegian ship, badly damaged and listing heavily, managed to reach an east coast port after sending distress signals. She was believed damaged by German air attacks.

Man Is Killed

One man was killed and 11 persons were missing after an unnamed Italian steamer was mined in the North Sea.

The attacks off Yorkshire came at daybreak.

Anti-aircraft guns along the Thames estuary barked at planes believed to be German, while the British air ministry announced that Royal Air Force scouts had reached Berlin during the night on the third such excursion within a week.

British fliers also reconnoitered Hamburg, Bremen, Hanover, Kiel, Luebeck, Cuxhaven and Brunsbuttel and maintained patrols over Helgoland Bight, the air ministry said.

Burgeoning activity in the half-year-old war lent point to the comment of a British aviation source which said German air attacks on shipping "apparently are part of a long-term attempt to bleed Britain white."

"The essence of the German plan," said the British aviation authority, "seems to be to strike at Britain in a way in which Germany cannot well be struck in return and to refrain from measures which would invite immediate and overwhelming counter-attack."

Confidence in Defenses
Failure of Germany to launch mass attacks which Great Britain expected hourly during the first weeks of the war has bolstered confidence in the nation's anti-aircraft defenses and has permitted expansion of the British air force without the disturbance of major fighting.

"The allies' growing air ascendancy is backed by the Great Dominions air training scheme now getting into stride," said the aviation source, remarking that "after a short period of comparative immunity," German raiders were suffering renewed casualties, mostly due to pursuit by British fighter planes.

Germany's big air fleet already is built, said a British aviation observer, and consequently it is becoming obsolete while the allies "have gained in modernity of design what they have lacked in numbers."

Even though mass bombing attacks have not developed, the British government has been periodically warning the public that an aerial "blitzkrieg" might come with the warm weather of spring, and has continued to move hundreds of clerks out of London to disperse the machinery of government. Details were worked out before the war for decentralized government in the event of air raids.

The public is enduring taxes amounting to 37 per cent of a person's income, food rationing, now applied to butter, sugar and

Europe Puts Six Months of War Under Her Belt and Fights On

With spring in the offing, Europe on March 1 ticked off the sixth month of a new war—the 15 high spots of which are shown on this map. Outlined by the broken line (right center) is conquered Poland, partitioned after 27 days of "Blitzkrieg" warfare which Adolf Hitler touched off just before dawn of September 1, 1939, when he ordered Nazi troops to march into Poland. The Eastern sector of Poland went to Russia, which joined the invasion September 17. Germany controls the western part, either by incorporation into the Reich or their Viipuri (No. 15) from invading Reds.

French Will Hold Three Prohibition Days Every Week

Official Journal Publishes 17 Decrees, Including Ban on Sale of All Alcoholic Drinks

Paris, March 1 (AP)—Three "prohibition days" a week were decreed today as the government announced details of its wartime regimentation of civilians.

Among 17 decrees published in the official journal were these:

The public sale and consumption of alcoholic drinks was forbidden on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Pastry shops were closed Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

A general census as a prelude to the issuance of ration cards was ordered completed by April 1.

Ministers were authorized to issue notices later of products the sales of which would be restricted. First of the ration cards were expected to be for bread.

The decrees were part of the general belt-tightening program announced yesterday which included a gold revaluation bookkeeping operation that put a 22 per cent higher value on France's gold supply and provided nearly half of a fifty billion franc (about $1,120,000,444) addition to her war funds.

Manning's Attack Against Russell Rallies Defense

Episcopal Bishop Decries Appointment to Faculty at City College of 'Immoral' Man

New York, March 1 (AP)—Officials of the City College of New York defended today the appointment to their faculty of Bertrand Russell, characterized by Bishop William T. Manning of the Protestant Episcopal Church as "a recognized propagandist against both religion and morality."

Bishop Manning, in a letter to the New York Herald Tribune, quoted this passage from Russell's book, "Education and the Good Life."

"In teaching my own children, I shall try to prevent them from learning a moral code which I regard as harmful. . . . I shall not teach that faithfulness to our partner through life is in any way desirable, or that a permanent marriage should exclude temporary episodes."

Dr. Nelson P. Mead, the college's acting president, said Russell's appointment was "a

Reinforced Red Army Quickens Drive Toward Port City; Planes Launch New Wave of Bombing Terror

Helsinki, March 1 (AP)—Finnish defenders struggled today to hold Viipuri, bomb-blackened and deserted Gulf of Finland port, from Soviet Russian forces closing in almost at its gates.

A reinforced Red army stepped up the pace of its onslaughts in an attempt to strike the knockout blow of its month-long drive against Finland's key city on the Karelian Isthmus. Some sources said the Russians had sent fully 19 fresh divisions, nearly 300,000 men, into the isthmus fighting.

The Finns fell back to stronger positions, mined Viipuri Bay and massed artillery in an effort to stave off encirclement by preventing the Russians from crossing the ice from north of the Koivisto fortified area to the west and rear of Viipuri.

(A Red army communique today said the Russians were only a little more than a mile from Viipuri and were closing in from the south and east in a "developing" offensive.)

(It reported the nearest force at Viipuri, on Viipuri Bay just south of the city, and the vanguard of the column approaching from the east at Pero, a railroad station about five miles away.)

(In its advance, the communique said, the Russian army captured 270 more Finnish fortifications—including 66 iron and concrete forts—and, besides Pero, occupied Heinjoki and Ayrapaa, all on the Viipuri-Valkjärvi railroad. Heinjoki is about 14 miles east of Viipuri and Ayrapaa about 12 miles farther east.)

While the Finns struggled to stem the Russian tide on the western side of the Karelian Isthmus, they coped with flames and casualties from air raids which struck many cities.

Fleets of Russian bombing planes, which raised some cities almost to area unscathed, blazed a trail of death and flames over a wide area. The attacks included three alarms, but no bombs, in Helsinki.

Many civilians died and many others were injured. At least 10 were killed at Savonlinna, island town of Komonselka Lake, 80 miles north of Viipuri, which Finns said were devastated. Dozens of fires devastated the town, site of the medieval fortress of Olavi, hitherto one of the best preserved relics in northern Europe.

U. S. Emissary Confers With von Ribbentrop and Will Meet Hitler Tomorrow

Cites Mail Case

Germany Points at Anglo Seizure of Mails as Typical Case

Berlin, March 1 (AP)—Germany is not prepared even to discuss peace until and unless Britain's "stranglehold on the economic life of the world" is broken—this in effect is understood to have been the central thesis of the first talk today between President Roosevelt's fact-finding emissary and Adolf Hitler's foreign minister.

Moreover, Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop is understood to have told Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles that until Britain's dominance is ended Germany is unable to entertain Secretary Hull's ideas concerning elimination of autarchy, regimentation and totalitarianism from the post-war economic world.

Sources in Von Ribbentrop's confidence developed this idea so strongly to this correspondent that there can be little doubt that Ribbentrop himself gave this line of talk to Welles, with whom he was closeted soon after the American's arrival this morning.

The talk began at noon and lasted until 2:30 p. m. (8:30 a. m., E. S. T.) after which Welles was escorted back to his hotel in a German foreign office car by one of Von Ribbentrop's adjutants. Then Welles and the United States charge d'affaires, Alexander Kirk, immediately went to the American delegation's suite.

Welles, arriving from Rome, where he already had conferred with Premier Mussolini on his fact-finding mission for President Roosevelt, was greeted in the German capital this morning with the shrieks of air raid sirens which were unintentionally martial—it was a regular alarm rehearsal.

Meets Hitler Tomorrow

It was understood that the main purpose of Welles' talk with Von Ribbentrop was to prepare the ground for the American's meeting with Fuehrer Hitler probably tomorrow.

In developing the thesis that Britain has a stranglehold on the world, Von Ribbentrop was believed to have told Welles that British censorship of American clipper mail at Bermuda was a mere pinprick for the United States compared to what all Europe as well as Asia feels all the time.

So long as England holds Gibraltar and the Suez Canal, for example—so Von Ribbentrop is supposed to have argued—there is no security for the rest of the world. According to the German view, London uses economic strangulation as one of her weapons for holding the rest of the world in submission, and therefore Germany is rendering a service to civilization in challenging Britain's right to such a practice.

'By Throats Again'

Germany, in the foreign office view which undoubtedly was communicated to Welles, would rather fight to the bitter end than to agree to a compromise by which after some years, when England holds strategic control points governing raw materials and the world's business, she "decides" to give enemies and neutrals by the throats again.

Von Ribbentrop, according to reliable sources, also said that Germany established a protectorate over Bohemia and Moravia (heart of the former Czechoslovak republic) seized Poland only because England and France tried to use these areas as operating bases against Germany.

If the present grip on Bohemia and Moravia is tight and if Poland at present is ruled with a firm hand, Von Ribbentrop was represented as ready to say to Welles in reply to any questions along these lines, this is due solely to the fact that the British and French even now have not ceased trying to incite these little nations to rebellion.

The foreign office lays claim to being in possession of evidence that the British are busy in Lithuania, stirring up trouble there, and especially encouraging the Poles to create a disturbance in the so-called "governor's area" of Poland administered by Germany.

'Off the Record'

Washington, March 1 (AP)—Violating all political tradition, a half dozen or more potential White House candidates will set forth reasons tonight why they should not be President. But it will be in fun and "off the record." Candidates for all party nominations were invited to be honor guests at a dinner of the National Press Club, where they will make brief humorous talks.

"What's the matter with her?" asked the jurist.
"She just had a baby and I haven't seen it yet."

Professors' Dilemma
Mount Vernon, Iowa—Professorial dignity underwent something of a let-down at Cornell College here because a student janitor was in a rush to meet his "date."
He accidentally locked two professors in a chapel wash-room after a public lecture. They were released in a half-hour, their knuckles bleeding from door pounding.

"Boo"
Minneapolis—Policeman Maurice Kohlers doesn't scare easily and you can't shout "boo" at him and get away with it even if you are a pretty girl.

When Kohlers saw a couple out after 2:45 a. m. he reminded them that it was time for young people to be home. To this the girl replied: "So you're a policeman—boo-oo!"

Municipal Judge Paul Guilford imposed $5 fines which were suspended.

Sunday School Association Convenes at Kerhonkson

The Rev. F. A. Baker was asked to introduce the speaker of the evening, the Rev. William Peckham, of Clinton Avenue Methodist Church, Kingston.

The banner for the quarter was awarded Bloomington Reformed Church, with Stone Ridge Methodist second and Kerhonkson Reformed Church third.

The closing hymn was "Faith of Our Fathers."

Kerhonkson Union School Activities

A novel experiment is being carried out in the local schools. Teachers are planning to use a machine which records the human voice in order to improve instruction. It is now possible to make a recording of a pupil as he reads orally and then play the record back to him in order that he may recognize his faults.

Many high school pupils are deficient in reading ability and this may prove an excellent means for bettering their studies. Supervisor of Music Charles F. Green used the machine recently to record a song by the entire school; he then played the selection back to the student body who were very much impressed. In correcting faults in the high school orchestra, the machine has already proved its value.

Talks which may be of historical importance, such as those delivered by President Roosevelt, Chancellor Hitler, Prime Minister Chamberlain, and others, may be recorded at any time during the day and played over during the regular class periods. Each member of the public speaking class is having a recording made and will compare this with another recording at the end of the year in order to note his improvement.

Plans are under way to make records of various teaching situations in order to improve the teachers' techniques. Perhaps at some future date, pupils may be able to go to the school library and ask for a recording of pupils who did outstanding work in previous years.

The Board of Education, which met Friday evening, February 23, was impressed with the device. Most of the members present had their voices recorded.

Lorin Davis was elected chairman in the absence of President Maynard DeWitt. In order to eliminate some of the sound which penetrates the hallways from the gym, Percy Greene is designing special panels to be installed in the lower hall.

This year the Kerhonkson High School has been decidedly "assembly minded." The students, co-operating with the teachers, have desired to make this weekly hour, a time for relaxation from books, but, nevertheless, they have sought from it inspiration and profit.

A few weeks ago the Glee Club under Charles F. Green featured an operetta, with an all girl cast. This was voted one of the most enjoyable assemblies of the year. It is kind of anticipated.

More recently a talk was given by Theodore J. Goldman, attorney-at-law, on the topic, "American Youth Today." The student body took this bit of legal advice seriously and are still commenting on the value of "a clean record."

At the last assembly Cyril Small of the Farm Bureau showed slides in color of the World's Fair, and commented on the "trick photography" contained therein. His talk was in the nature of a travelogue, as it was also based on scenes along the Hudson from Kingston to New York.

The library is awaiting an order of new books which will be on display at the April Parent-Teacher Association. Titles ordered include: The Hudson, C. L. Carner; Reaching for the Stars, Nora Wolf; White Banners, Lloyd Douglas; America in Midpassage; Bears and Beard and Skin Deep, the Truth About Beauty, M. C. Phillips.

A number of boys under the direction of Charles F. Green are planning to conduct a Model Airplane Club after school hours. The members include: Robert Green, Raphael Scherr, Kenneth Krom, Seymour Feinberg, Lawrence Gallagher and Robert Lacy. Many of the boys have built models before and are planning to expand their knowledge. The final project of the year, according to Mr. Green, will be a gasoline powered ship which will fly for a considerable period of time.

Tire Prices Uncertain
Lagging activity in the replacement tire markets is a reflection of the price uncertainties in the 1940 outlook for the tire industry, according to Harris Brown, local U. S. Tire dealer. Two price moves last week brought some optimism but added little hope in the minds of trade observers for any general movement upward in tire prices. First harbinger of optimism was U. S. government award to various long bidding tire firms of contracts for

Kiwanis Hears Ills Of School Teaching

Most decidedly members of Kiwanis were given "something to think about" at their after-lunch program at the Governor Clinton Hotel Thursday noon when they heard the Rev. John B. Schultz of the Redemptorist Order, Mt. St. Alphonsus Seminary, exhort the teachers of "materialistic evolution" in the tax supported schools and colleges of the state. There was particular interest in his statement that "I understand there is one down at Kingston High School now."

The speaker found that a result of the teaching of the philosophy of Nietzsche, Freud, Dewey and James, boys and girls grew up to believe that "God does not exist" and that "perjury means nothing"; that conspiracy against the government of the United States, disregard of the sanctity of an oath, Communism, Nazism and other isms of that ilk, were logical outcomes of the teaching that was being given to the young people of the country. Comment was made that when these young people who, when at school, "learn what they are taught," later commit acts which are contrary to law, policemen are sent to arrest them.

Such teachings, also, were held responsible for "an absolute neglect of authority by young people today."

"I can name at least 200 professors who are teaching materialistic evolution in the schools and colleges today," said the speaker, and "100 who are teaching Freudian philosophy."

The Rev. Fr. Schultz was particularly bitter against the teaching that "lack of sex experience is the source of all neuroses" and that "chastity is a relic of the days of superstition." He said that he did not know that such teaching prevailed here, but that "in New York city high schools these things are taught by men who take a sadistic pleasure in poisoning the minds of boys and girls."

The speaker referred to "a wave of suicides in colleges" during the past 10 years, which in many cases did not get into the papers and which involved girls of the better class, who faced the future despondently, as a result of the doctrines that had been instilled into them by these Freudian teachers.

At the outset of his talk, which centered on "Modern progress and its relation to happiness," the speaker defined happiness as "having what we want," and true happiness as "having what we want always."

Modern progress was seen as defeating its own purpose so far as giving happiness was concerned, because it had produced a mode of living that was "one grand rush," while today there are too many things for people to want.

The secret of happiness was found in "adjusting ourselves to the circumstances of life" and

'HONEYMOON LINER' TURNED INTO WARSHIP

The steamship Queen of Bermuda, long a favorite of honeymooners when it was on the New York-Bermuda run, turned up in Rio de Janeiro harbor with two sizable guns on the port side and one anti-aircraft gun visible from the dock. One theory was that the vessel, which was requisitioned by the British government after the European war broke out, now is an auxiliary ship for allied warships in the south Atlantic.

"wanting only those things which are possible."

A "sense of humor" was needed to meet the situations of life today, the speaker said and it was when he added that it also was "needed in our educational systems" that he introduced his remarks about the teaching of questionable philosophies in the schools and colleges.

Paul Zucca was "back on the job" as song leader Thursday, but Danny Bittner, the regular accompanist, took his turn at being sick and Samuel D. Scudder, Jr., a loan from Rotary, presided at the piano.

President Pratt Boice called attention of members to the fact that this month's issue of the Kiwanian contained pictures of the past presidents of the Kingston club, due to the energy of the local publicity committee.

CHILDREN AND BLASTING CAPS

Renewed efforts are being made this spring in a country-wide campaign to protect children from the dangers of playing with blasting caps. Surveys made by the Institute of Makers of Explosives disclose that these accidents to children begin to increase in early spring and continue to a high point in the school vacation months.

Last year approximately two hundred children were injured by accidents caused when they found blasting caps and attempted to explode them by picking, hammering or throwing them in bonfires. It is stated that approximately eighty-five percent of the accidents occur in rural districts. Blasting caps are necessary in the use of explosives in road-building, blasting ditches, quarrying, removing stumps and in mining of all kinds. Sometimes these caps are left by careless workmen or thrown away in the neighborhood of the project after blasting operations have been completed. It is then that the children find them.

There are many construction projects in Ulster county, where blasting caps have been used and will continue to be used and it will be well for parents to warn their children not to touch one of these objects. They should be instructed to notify an officer of the law or a responsible adult. The campaign to reduce the accidents, which is being sponsored by the explosive manufacturers, is being participated in by school authorities, National Safety Council, Boy Scouts and many other groups.

Blasting caps are particularly dangerous since they are loaded with a sensitive and powerful explosive and when detonated scatter fragments of metal in all directions, say the explosive manufacturer. In some cases these accidents cause children to lose their eyesight; hands and legs are injured; occasionally death results.

RUSSIAN STRATEGY

Vast Russia, sprawling across Europe and Asia, is primarily an inland country wanting and needing access to the sea. That is probably what her present war is about, in a dull, tumbling way.

Russia has had four outlets. She had access northward to the Arctic through her ice-free ports at Archangel and Murmansk; westward to the Atlantic from Leningrad through the Bay of Finland and the Baltic; southward to the Mediterranean from the Black Sea through the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles; and eastward to the Pacific from Siberia, at Vladivostok.

Stalin and his empire-planners apparently decided, while the other big powers were occupied, to improve their position on some of these waterways. They tackled Finland first, perhaps because it seemed easiest, aiming at complete control of the Gulf of Finland, and probably relying on friendly Germany to give them secure passage through the Baltic. And while pushing their frontier farther west from Leningrad, they would abolish Finland's Mannerheim Line, perhaps also abolishing Finland, making their northern outlet more secure. The Scandinavian Peninsula could wait.

They may abolish Finland, at a cost of 500,000 men and a couple of billion dollars. What then? Britain, France and Turkey seem to assume that they will strike next to break through from the Black Sea and grab the Bosphorus and Dardanelles strategic junction of Europe and Asia and the most famous waterway in history.

POWER PIONEER

In the realm of electric power development, here's an interesting bit from Alsop and Kintner's Washington column:

"The utilities executives have not abandoned their opposition to the New Deal plan for connecting inter-state systems by high tension power lines built at government expense. This they regard as the entering wedge for further regulation, and they have insisted that it be studied further before a decision is reached."

This present comment is not concerned with the controversial question, whether state power systems should be interconnected by public capital or private capital, but merely ly with a bit of pioneer history in interstate power planning.

The originator of the idea, or at least its first prominent advocate, was a Republican banker named Myron T. Herrick, who became famous as American ambassador to France at the outbreak of the World War. Several years before that, when electric transmission for as much as 200 miles was regarded as a remarkable feat, Mr. Herrick was urging investors to prepare for a gridiron system of power distribution covering the whole country.

He was only thirty years ahead of the times.

SCANDINAVIAN ALLIES

Europe now has something like a "United States of Scandinavia." Sweden, Norway and Denmark have agreed that they will maintain a common policy and act as a unit with regard to belligerent nations. They want to maintain a sphere of sanity and self-defense in a continent already on the verge of general war. They want to stop further encroachment of belligerents against their peace and prosperity.

Americans, none too confident of the outcome, wish them success. They probably represent the highest and the most decent and intelligent civilization now existing in Europe. They are, broadly speaking, of one blood and almost one language. It will be a great boon to mankind if they can maintain their peace and independence in the hot winds of war now blowing upon them from the east and south.

The pity of it is that Finland, their neighbor and equal in civilization and spirit, though of another race, cannot stand with them. A brutal enemy has struck her down and she now seems doomed.

It is saddening to reflect now that if the four could have stood together in the beginning, as the three stand now, the enemy in all probability would not have struck. It is still more saddening to realize that, with all their valor and decency, the big war may still suck them in and the barbarous Communist-Nazi juggernaut roll over them.

The great American saxophonist, Rudy Wiedoeft, died with the satisfaction of knowing that the sax is now considered a musical instrument.

Seems as if that wonderful display of evening stars came along just to show people how lovely things are outside of this earth.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act)
 COLDS, FATIGUE MAY CAUSE PNEUMONIA

The story is often told of the man being examined for insurance who was asked if he had any of the diseases of childhood.

"No," was his answer.
 "What! Have you never had measles, chickenpox, scarlet fever or mumps?"

"Oh, yes," he replied, "I've had all those diseases half a dozen times."
 Most diseases of childhood seldom occur more than once, but in this man's opinion they were important. There is, however, one ailment that may occur more than once and each time it occurs it lessens the resistance of the patient so that he is more apt to have another attack. That disease is pneumonia. Hospital statistics show that about two of three pneumonia patients had a head cold, sore throat, or slight bronchitis before the pneumonia appeared.

What does this mean? This means that either thinning of the nose, throat, and bronchial tubes becomes less able to ward off infection each time the individual has a cold, or the infection lowers the general strength of the body so that the body as a whole is less able to fight off each succeeding attack of colds and bronchitis, which may be followed by pneumonia.

However, pneumonia may attack an individual who is not subject to colds and bronchitis, and may also in some cases attack an individual without starting in with a cold or bronchitis. However, the reason pneumonia attacks the individual, whether or not a cold is present, is because he is not well, is run down, is very tired, or has been exposed to cold and dampness. The fact that pneumonia occurs 5 to 10 times as often in the cold weather as in the warm weather shows that cold and dampness lower vitality.

As pneumonia organisms are present in individuals in perfect health, the reason that these organisms do not set up an infection in the body is because the individual is in good health. "Pneumonia does not, as a rule, attack a perfectly healthy person."

The lesson is plain. Try to avoid colds, but if a cold occurs, get off the feet, and give the body its best chance to prevent an attack of pneumonia. Should pneumonia occur, the heart will have some reserve power with which to fight it.

The Common Cold

The common cold is probably the most neglected of all ailments yet it may lead to serious complications—bronchitis, bronchopneumonia and pneumonia. Send for Dr. Barton's helpful booklet about it entitled "The Common Cold" (No. 104), enclosing ten cents to cover cost of handling and mention the Kingston Daily Freeman. Significance of United States' Loan to Finland Will Gain True Value With Passing of Years

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, March 1.—Many years from now the action of the Congress, just completed, in making available a loan of $20,000,000 to the government of Finland will look far more significant than it does today. For, in the midst of a war for its very existence, Finland has received an outright gift of $20,000,000, but which actually will be a net addition to Finland's financial resources in its fighting with Russia.

The obligations of neutrality—a very doubtful term these days—caused the Congress to refrain from naming Finland as the borrower, and the artificial device of increasing the funds of the Export-Import Bank to achieve the same purpose was used.

This may appear to be legalized subterfuge, but in a world where in nations fight each other with all the weapons of war and yet obtain the advantages of peaceful commerce by refusing to sanction a formal declaration of belligerency, neutral governments are similarly compelled to adopt diplomatically-conceived instrumentalities.

Nobody is deceived by the process. The Russian government knows what the American Congress has done. So do the people of Finland. The President of the United States has even gone so far as to express publicly his belief that 98 per cent of the American people sympathize with Finland in its struggle to retain independence.

Finland, of course, will have to comply with the formalities. She will buy foodstuffs with the money made available by the Export-Import Bank, but she will rearrange her domestic purchases so that money ordinarily used to buy food will go into the coffers of the Finnish treasury to buy munitions.

Just how the Finns will rearrange their credits is their own business. The American government will ask no questions and will, of course, have no authority over what the treasury of Finland does with all its financial resources.

The salient fact remains that America has helped Finland at a critical time. Finland won her way into the good graces of the American people not only by her democratic processes, but by honoring her debt obligations to the United States.

So far as Nazi and Communist observers may see, the United States government has backed up its expressions of moral support with material aid to Finland. Does it mark a precedent for the future? The political generals here on both sides insist that America will never enter the war, but can it be as of today asserted that the United States will not some day extend financial aid to other nations similarly hard-pressed?

Already there is a talk of a relief appropriation for Poland, but this is plainly a humanitarian measure. Congress is being impetuous by Republicans and Democrats to come to the relief of the millions of human beings who are starving in the conquered areas of Poland. Germany refuses to extend aid, insisting that the British blockade cuts off supplies needed for her own people.

Former President Hoover has told a congressional committee that America, in his opinion, should appropriate money for the aid of the starving Poles. His view will help to keep the question from becoming tangled in partisan politics, which happened in some respects with reference to the Finnish loan.

Congress is in a mood to hand out a few millions here and there for humanitarian reasons, and some day it may be in a mood to lend large sums to Norway and Sweden if they should find themselves attacked. The probabilities are that even some of the increased authorizations just voted through the Export-Import Bank will be used in substantial ways to help Norway and Sweden to buy munitions and prepare for potential developments in Scandinavia if the Finns are conquered.

So whether America likes it or not, she has become involved in the world-wide struggle for the preservation of democracy, and while nobody is even remotely suggesting that the United States will ever send an army overseas again, American credits are bound to flow abroad in support of the cause of democracy. The Finnish loan makes a precedent that can not possibly be erased and marks a milestone in America's course of alleged isolation.

BABSON ON BUSINESS

STEEL LEADS SLUMP

Babson Discusses Business Decline Since New Year

Babson Park, Fla., March 1.—Paced by the fast moving steel business, industrial activity has dipped six per cent under the ten-year peak reached in December. Statistics show that retail trade and service businesses, however, have been holding at the high levels of late 1939. Most people with whom I talked on my trip to Boston during the past fortnight believe that the current sag in industrial activity is no more than a natural reaction from the too rapid rise last Fall. They believe the down trend will be abruptly halted and the trend reversed in the next month or two.

This same optimistic outlook was the keynote of my Annual Mid-Winter Business Conference held here in Florida within the last few days. All are agreed that industrial activity has slackened off since the turn of the year; but they also report that retail trade and service businesses have been moving along at, or near, the top rate of recent months. The Babsonchart confirms these reports. It has dropped from its peak of 120.5 in December to 113.0 at the present time. This represents a total decline of only six per cent.

Steel on Toboggan Slide
 The biggest part of this six per cent loss is accounted for by a very sharp sliding down in one industry—steel. The Babsonchart shows that steel operations have plummeted from 94 per cent of capacity in mid-December to 67.0 per cent at current writing. This is the lowest operating rate since last summer. The decline has completely erased the sensational skyrocketing of steel operations last Fall. Moreover, new steel orders are coming through so slowly that at the moment they are not sufficient to maintain operations even at the present rate. I believe, however, that there will soon be a pickup.

Other pivotal industries such as textiles, shoes, paper, and lumber have shared in the decline from the December peak. While January motor assemblies hit a new all-time peak for any January in history, they have been slowing down since. However, there have been no such drastic declines in the above group of industries as in steel. Textiles are off 10 per cent, freight traffic 15 per cent, power five per cent, the average probably being less than 10 per cent.

Trade Holding Well
 Meanwhile, mail order and department store merchants all over the country report good retail trade. The early Easter this year may account for part of the current gain over a year ago, but it does not explain the entire step-up in sales tempo. Much of the gain can be credited to a substantial improvement in factory payrolls, farm income, and investors' dividends—all of which are chugging along well above last year's figures. Retail prices are four per cent above the level of last March, while increased public buying power has pushed total dollar sales up even higher.

Sparkplug of last Fall's boomlet was the sudden revival of the heavy industries. This put the "oomph" in the 1939 recovery. Biggest worry of business men with whom I have talked is the

Presbyterian Men Hold Dinner and Hear Addresses

The Rev. John P. McCaffrey, who since coming to Kingston to assume the pastorate of St. Joseph's Church a few months ago, following a service of 15 years as chaplain at Sing Sing prison, has been in demand as a speaker at numerous public gatherings here, gave the main address at the annual supper of the Men's Club of the First Presbyterian Church Thursday night.

Other prominent speakers introduced by Kenneth D. Lantry, president of the club, who presided during the evening, were Acting Mayor John J. Schwenk, Assistant District Attorney Frederick H. Stang, Superintendent of Schools Arthur J. Laidlaw, and Ezra McIntosh, program director of Station WKNY.

About 80 members and guests of the flourishing Men's Club enjoyed the speaking and the generous supper that preceded it. Corned beef and cabbage was the piece de resistance of the meal and there was general expression of regret that "Mr. Jiggs" could not have been present to enjoy his favorite dish. Clifford Van Valkenburgh, general superintendent at the county clerk's office, not only was the chef for the occasion, but according to report had watched this particular lot of corned beef for weeks, as a mother watches her darling child, to see that it "aged" to just the right degree. "Veet" says that anyone can cook corned beef, but it is the preliminary work that counts.

Acting Mayor Schwenk was the first speaker of the evening and congratulated President Lantry as a man who "put his heart and soul into his work" and had followed that principle in his conduct of the affairs of the club. Mr. Schwenk said that he had been asked whether carrying out the duties of mayor in recent weeks had not interfered with his meals and he had replied that except for the period preceding the recent campaign he had never eaten so well in his life as the dinner of the evening being a case in point.

Mr. Stang spoke of the place Men's Clubs filled in the community, making men better acquainted and promoting a kindly feeling.

Men's Clubs intensify community interest and community friendship and make the city a better place to live in, he said. He urged the members of the Presbyterian club to back up their hard-working committees and show their appreciation of what they were doing by attending the meetings and co-operating in the work.

At the conclusion of his talk the Rev. William J. McVey, popular pastor of the church, called attention to the fact that on March 21 Mr. Stang would give an address at the church, speaking on the trial of Jesus Christ from a lawyer's point of view.

Mr. McIntosh spoke briefly regarding some of the coming programs to be broadcast by the local station, particularly of the community breakfast to be held at the Governor Clinton Hotel by the Federation of Men's Clubs.

Superintendent of Schools Laidlaw also spoke briefly on the supreme place religion and education occupy as the fundamentals of good government and said there was need to fear unless there were given their proper place. He referred to the days of his boyhood when on Sundays the entire family would be found in their pew in church and regretted that today that custom was honored more in the breach than in its observance.

church and regretted that today that custom was honored more in the breach than in its observance.

'Causation of Crime'
Father McCaffrey, the concluding speaker of the evening, held the interest of all his hearers as he discussed the "Causation of Crime," speaking from his long experience as a prison chaplain and observations he had made.

He spoke of the staggering cost of crime—$25,000 a minute in this country, according to figures compiled by J. Edgar Hoover—and equivalent to about $120 on every tax bill.

Special emphasis was laid on the youthfulness of criminals, and it was noted that on one occasion out of 27 murderers confined in the death house at Sing Sing 13 of them were 21 years or under, four of them was a lad in short pants.

The speaker reviewed the various theories that had been held in searching for the cause of crime. One of the earliest of more modern investigators, Lombroso, searched the prisons in an attempt to prove that criminals were a "throw-back" and were characterized by what he called the "stigmata of degeneration." Some time later two Englishmen conducted a similar survey and were unable to find any such marked difference in the general appearance of criminals and those outside of prison.

Then came the theory, quite widely accepted, that criminals were "sick," that crime was a disease, that it was due to a maladjustment of the criminal's body to his environment.

The speaker said that he did not believe in the physical theory of crime, which he said presented a subtle attack on the criminal's responsibility for his acts. He said that he had made a study of this feature of crime philosophy and had discovered that the average health record of those in prison was about twice as good as those outside, taking statistics presented by different surveys. He also quoted the opinion of a large number of doctors to the effect that as a whole there was no difference between the men in prison and those outside in this respect. The disease theory, said the speaker, is advanced by those who do not believe in the soul.

15 Per Cent Illiterate
Father McCaffrey found more ground to connect crime and lack of education and said that a 10 years' survey of prison population had disclosed that about 15 per cent were entirely illiterate; 25 per cent could read and write but had had no schooling; 50 per cent had attended grammar school; seven per cent high school and two per cent were college educated.

Generally, speaking, he said, there were two classes to be found in prison—those of very high intelligence, but most often with a wrong set of principles and who had used their brains the wrong way; those equipped with very little gray matter. As a whole, a survey had shown that prison inmates were about three times as illiterate as those outside prison.

As to benefits of psychiatry, the speaker held that it "began at the wrong end." He felt that the psychiatrist should start when the boy began to get out of hand. He did not believe that it had any place among normal children who were getting along all right.

Religion, as a fortifier of the will, was seen as perhaps the outstanding need and it was noted that 90 per cent of the men in prison were not attending church when they were on the outside. The speaker asked what there was to make a man obey the civil law when once there was lack of belief in God and the soul. He expressed the opinion that "the influence of faith is the greatest aid in keeping a man out of trouble."

"This it was seen as a menace that, according to reports, there are in this country from 65 to 75 million people who have no church connections and the further statement that 'not ten per cent of the children in this country are receiving any kind of religious training.' A recent statement by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce was quoted to the effect that "the religious education of the young is the most pressing need in the United States."

"Spend before, not after the crime," Father McCaffrey urged in closing as he spoke of the cost of keeping men in prison and the cost of juvenile courts.

Following the dinner members of the Men's Club met for their annual business session. Officers elected for the ensuing year are: Harold Smith, president; Edward Finch, vice president; Howard Stephens, treasurer; Hugh Smith, secretary; Edsel Flowers and John Vankleeck were named delegates to the Federation of Men's Clubs.

120 Measles Cases

LEAP BEFORE YOU LOOK

YESTERDAY, Tomi leaves the Toland house and goes to a hotel. Despite the antagonism between Tomi and Bartell, he says his responsibilities are not over until he delivers her to the farm.

Chapter Four

'Last Leaps To Luxury'

AT LEAST, she was free from the family. They'd forgave her in time, perhaps in the morning. Morning brought Tomi a taste of sheer joy. Jumping out of bed to close the windows, she stood a moment, shivering but delighting in the view, looking out on a city white with snow and washed with the gold of the sun. The storm had blown away during the night, leaving ice-blue shadows in the street canyons, a cerulean sky overhead.

"And," breathed Tomi, "for the first time in twelve years I won't have to eat oatmeal for breakfast."

She chose a table near a window where she entered the hotel coffee shop. The shining silver and on snowy linen, shining silver and a slim vase of fluted jonquils. Breakfast was a tall glass of orange juice, crisp toast with marmalade, and a whole pot of steaming coffee.

It was also Tomi's first introduction to the press.

The young man who seated himself across from her with an abrupt, "So you're Tomi Toland," looked as though he had arisen recently, and reluctantly.

"Understand you've inherited a million dollars," he commented.

"A million what?" echoed Tomi, and while he went sleepily through a wad of copy paper, she escaped.

Hurrying from the lobby, she was aware of clicking cameras and arms that reached out to detain her; voices that asked her to wait a moment, other voices begging her to pose.

She was aware of further clicking, as she stepped into a cab.

The office provided a steady anti-climax. Midwestern Fruits, Incorporated, was unaware of harboring a celebrity. This gave Tomi time to orient herself.

She must first arrange for someone to take her place. Perhaps A. J. would give her a leave of absence so if she failed with the farm she'd have a job to which to return. Then she must buy something new to help her morale.

She wished she had time to take a course in frog raising; she supposed agricultural colleges had frogs in their curriculum. At least she could purchase books.

At that moment A. J. Morris burst into his private office, his face beaming. "And you said the old boy didn't like you," he ejaculated. "Have you seen the afternoon papers? Left you sole heir to a million—"

Tomi arose in protest. "A. J., please wait a minute." But her employer was not to be deterred.

"It gives me faith in human nature to see you getting a break, little girl. Hate like the dickens to lose you as my secretary, but I won't stand in your way one minute. What's that girl's name who relieved you last vacation? Call her in; break her in."

"A. J., please"—Tomi got no further. Johnny had come into the room like a young cyclone, an afternoon tabloid in his hand.

"Looky!" he roared. "Look what's on the front page about Tomi. Can you beat it?"

A. J. snatched the newspaper from his hand, and Tomi, looking over his shoulder, gasped and read:

LASS LEAPS TO LUXURY

ON FROGS' LEGS

Beneath this was a photograph of Tomi's stockinged extremities, generously exposed as she stepped into a taxicab.

'French Femme'

"FROGS' legs!" exploded A. J. "Are they intimating those are frogs' legs?"

Tomi jerked her employer's sleeve. "Will you listen to me!" she demanded. "I did not inherit a million dollars—understand? I did inherit a million frogs!"

Fortunately A. J.'s hair was both handy and spacious for her sat in it without a backward look. "Those things don't happen," he protested, when he could stop laughing long enough to talk.

"I won't happen to anyone but me," Tomi retorted.

A. J. sobered. "Tell me about it," he ordered.

Tomi spared herself nothing. She went into every gruesome detail. "There I went leaping into the parlor like an incandescent Mercury, to come to a stop in the arms—"

"Yes, yes, go on," urged Morris. But Tomi couldn't go on. How could she hope to put a man like Allen Bartell into words; how describe what he appeared to be and was?

"You can at least tell me what he looks like," grumbled Morris. "I suppose he's tall, dark and handsome."

"He's tall," conceded Tomi, "but he isn't dark. He has golden eyes—no, I don't mean that—he has gray-blue eyes with golden glints in them; mercenary glints. You see, A. J., if I fail to make good out there the place reverts to him."

She explained the ramifications of Timothy Toland's will and A. J. Morris, listening, nodded as though he understood better than Tomi.

When she had concluded, he remarked, "The old fellow has given you a sporting chance to show your stuff."

"If you call dumping a million frogs into the lap of a stenographer who has never before seen one in the raw, sporting," flashed Tomi.

A. J. drummed on his desk for a few minutes then ordered, "Call this fellow over here. I want to talk to him. As long as the family is acting as usual, someone had better investigate him."

Tomi wondered at her breathless excitement as she waited for her operator to reach Bartell's hotel; for the hotel operator to give her message in the crisp, businesslike tone she achieved.

However, when he replied with a brief and all-inclusive "Quite," she longed to tear the telephone out by the roots and hurl it at him.

Another period of calm ensued. Tomi called Leola Lloyd from the outer office and introduced her into the mysteries of A. J.'s private business life.

For a little while she forgot Bartell, the farm, the frogs and the family. Then came an eruption.

Allen Bartell and Major John Toland arrived simultaneously. The Major quivered with wrath, Bartell with poorly suppressed laughter.

"It is an outrage!" the Major proclaimed, advancing upon Tomi. "Hannah is prostrated with mortification. Have you seen this?" He thrust a newspaper at Tomi and she had a second glimpse of herself going into a cab.

"Yes," she admitted. "And this?" He thrust a later edition at her.

Tomi looked at a glaring headline. FRENCH FEMME FAVORS FROGS TO FAMILY.

"No," hadn't seen that," Tomi murmured and wondered how the newspapers had learned of her preference.

"And this?" It was Bartell who handed her the third newspaper. TOLANDS TOUCHY ON TOMI TOPIC.

The story below this head revealed that a door had been slammed in the face of the inquiring reporter, but not before he had learned that Tomi didn't live there any more; that the Tolands didn't know where she had gone, and cared less.

Insane? "Well, now," grunted the Major, "what do you think of those headlines?"

"The alliteration," murmured Tomi. "It's practically perfect."

"Alliteration?" roared the Major. "You speak of alliteration at a time like this. Young lady, we've had enough. We've stood for you for twelve years. We know you planned this campaign of publicity to write advertisements; promote campaigns. You knew that no Chicago newspaper would be interested in a thirty-thousand-dollar legacy. And you knew they would play such a ridiculous tagline to a finish."

Tomi looked at Bartell. She hadn't thought of the feature value of frogs. Could he have been the one to instigate this newspaper publicity? The Major was orating.

"We forbid you to use the name of Toland further. We are giving a statement to the press. We are telling the world that our brother, our own blood brother, Timothy Toland, was insane when he drew up that will."

Major Toland and Tomi stared at Bartell spoke. "May I suggest you do not broadcast such a statement unless you want it generally known that there is a strain of insanity in the Toland blood?"

"Insanity in the Toland blood?" roared the Major. "How dare you suggest such a thing? Young man, we trace our family back to the year fourteen hundred, and never has there been even a taint or suggestion of insanity!"

Tomi, who had wondered at Bartell's signal to Leola Lloyd and had watched her taking the Major's words down in shorthand, looked up as the young attorney spoke.

"And of course you will sign a statement to that effect," he was suggesting.

"Gladly, young man, gladly," agreed the Major, and proceeded to elaborate on the theme.

Tomi watched Leola's fingers flying over the keys, saw her handing out duplicate copies of the statement, and watched the Major's signature go down and down, something, but didn't know what.

Thanksgiving Date
Portland, Ore. (AP)—It may be a little early to worry about it, but it looks as if the date of Thanksgiving will be an issue again in 1940. Some calendars adhere to the old "last Thursday in November" practice and designate Thanksgiving as the 28th. But others—including some printed by the federal government for the use of congressmen—give the date as the 21st.

The first patent on a self-contained breathing apparatus was United States patent No. 7476, issued in 1850 to Lane. The first hose mask patent was No. 16863, issued in 1857 to Nelson. Gas mask development thus goes back many years and is indebted to many individuals.

'Gone With the Wind' Rides To Victory in 'Oscar' Tilt; But Gable's Forgotten Man

Hollywood, March 1 (AP)—Clark Gable, wherever he may be, is Hollywood's "forgotten man" of the moment.

But for Mr. Gable, who sets feminine hearts fluttering whenever his handsome face and fine physique appear on a theatre screen, "Gone With the Wind" would have swept the field last night in the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences' 11th annual selection of premier film accomplishments.

"GWTW" did all right, anyway. To the surprise of no one, it walked off with eight of 16 possible awards, including those for the best production, best actress, best supporting actress and best director. Not since "It Happened One Night" grabbed off all the top honors in 1934 has a picture done as well.

Only Robert Donat, among the principal contestants survived the big gale. He edged out Gable as the outstanding actor. The industry—from mighty producer to obscure electrician—named him for his masterful portrayal of 50 years in an English schoolmaster's life in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips."

Donat is in England and Gable left Hollywood yesterday for a short vacation.

Vivien Leigh Honored
Vivien Leigh made the top acting awards a sweep for England. The British girl, who came here a virtual unknown and skyrocketed to stardom as the fiery southern Scarlett, was on hand to accept her gold statuette.

Victor Fleming, director of the film, took the Irving Thalberg memorial award for "the most consistent high quality of production achievement by an individual producer."

Hattie McDaniel, "Mammy" in "Wind," captured the prize as the best supporting actress and with it became the first negro ever to be honored by the academy. Other "Wind" awards included: The late Sidney Howard for the screen play; Lyle Wheeler, art direction; Hal Kern and James Newcom, editing; Ernest Haller, color, and William Cameron Menzies, special color effects.

Other awards:
Thomas Mitchell in "Stagecoach" as the best supporting actor.

Lewis R. Foster, best original motion picture story, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington."

Bernard B. Brown, best sound recording in "When Tomorrow Comes."

Gregg Toland, best black and white photography in "Wuthering Heights."

Herbert Stothart, best original musical score, in "The Wizard of Oz."

Walter Wanger, Richard Hageman, Frank Harling, John Leopold and Leo Shuken, best musical scoring in "Stagecoach."

E. Y. Harburg and Harold Arlen, best song, "Over the Rainbow," from "The Wizard of Oz."

Walt Disney, cartoon, "The Ugly Duckling," Paramount for the best one reel short, "Busy Little Bears," and Warner Bros. for the best two-reel short, "Sons of Liberty."

A special award was given in honor of the late Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., first president of the academy, and presented to Doug, Jr. Another special honor went to Judy Garland, young singer, for work as "an outstanding juvenile."

Woodsmen Go West
The westward shift of the lumber industry is reflected in a forest service compilation of mill production from 1800 to the present time. Over the entire period the East has supplied more than four-fifths of the American lumber, three-fourths of which was softwoods and one-fourth hardwoods. At present, however, nearly half the lumber cut is from the western softwoods, which include Douglas fir, ponderosa pine, white pines, hemlock, spruce, and redwood. The central region has supplied more than 40 per cent of the hardwoods. The cut from 1900 to 1935 was more than half the cut for the previous century, but the mill value for the 35 years was considerably greater than half of the $38,000,000,000 which was the total estimated mill value of the cut for 135 years.

Vegetables Are Grown Using 'Bathtub' Culture
Henry Glair, a Florida farmer, is taking up hydroponic-water culture—farming on a big scale.

He has built 12 huge tanks of wood in which he hopes to produce a diversified vegetable crop ordinarily grown in the field.

The tanks are covered with a small wire mesh that holds moss and similar substances as supports for plants, which will grow in a nutrient solution. Roots of the plants will reach down into the tanks. The bottoms of the tanks are covered with cinders as an added support for plants.

According to Glair the theory of what is humorously called "bathtub farming" is fairly simple:

"A plant gets its growth, flavor and fragrance from sunlight; and air from the chemicals carried in the soil. The soil merely acts as a support for the plant and provides it with a part of the chemicals that it needs. Soil itself may even be detrimental in that it may contain elements that retard instead of promote growth. So, theoretically speaking, if we give a plant mechanical support, heat, sunlight, air and water containing the proper plant food, the plant ought to grow."

Radium Over-Exposure
The national bureau of standards has developed a device which flashes a warning to persons who are in danger of over-exposure to radium rays. When exposure to radium radiation reaches the limit deemed safe by the bureau's experts, the device flashes a red light and emits a buzzing sound. The bureau pointed out that in hospitals where large quantities of radium are handled it is important to protect the technicians from overexposure.

Church Organist To Mark Anniversary

On Sunday afternoon at St. John's Episcopal Church there will be an anniversary service marking the completion of 15 years of service as organist and choirmaster by Robert D. Williams. The service will begin promptly at 4 o'clock and will feature some of the favorite music of Mr. Williams. Mr. Williams came to St. John's parish during the rectorship of the Rev. Edward M. H. Knapp, and served the parish during the trying time of moving the church and its growth in its new locality. During this time he has set a high standard of church music and has developed one of the finest boy choirs in this section of the country. Mr. Williams received a part of his training under the famous church organist, T. Tertius Noble. This year also marks his 31st anniversary as a church organist. The order of service will be as follows: Proc 307—"O 'twas a joyous sound to hear . . ."; Parker Magnificat and Nunc Dimittes, B Flat . . .; Stanford Anthem after Third Collect—God.

Married Women Show New Spring Fashions

A colorful variety of day and evening wear for the society matron was presented to a capacity audience at the Y. W. C. A. Thursday afternoon by the members of the Married Women's Club. The largest assortment of spring fashions ever shown by the club were modeled before an audience of members and friends who crowded the Y. W. C. A. gymnasium to capacity.

The spring styles were shown before a particularly attractive setting arranged as a powder room, and before a background of pale blue. A dusty rose satin powder was the center of attraction before which each mannequin paused. Rose drapes, old fashioned prints upon the walls and chairs upholstered in a deeper shade of blue completed the setting and added to the tastefulness with which the fashion show was carried out.

Checks and plaids in predominating colors of blues and grays were exhibited as typical selections for the coming spring. The costumes were described by Bernard Goldman, of the Goldman Style Shop, which furnished the gowns, coats and hats.

Mrs. N. LeVan Haven, dressed as a maid, assisted the models in removing their jackets and coats to show dresses or suits. The mannequins were Mesdames John Kelly, Edward Hughes, Louis Fursman, Kenneth LeFever, Theodore Deming, Harold V. Clayton, Arthur Colligan, Eugene Freer, Addison Schultz.

Hair styles were shown by Mrs. Raymond R. Gross and Mrs. N. LeVan Haven, and were explained by Mrs. Evelyn Erickson, of the Governor Clinton Beauty Shop.

The annual fashion show was in charge of Mrs. Addison Schultz and Mrs. Harold Clayton. A food sale in charge of Mrs. Stanley Hankinson also was held in connection with the show.

Both patrons and single tickets of admission are available from Mrs. Loughran, Miss Campbell, Mrs. George W. Moore, Miss Mary McGill, Mrs. James R. Higley, Mrs. Charles O'Reilly, Mrs. Walter C. Miller, Mrs. Joseph T. Garland, Mrs. James T. O'Reilly, Miss Teresa Brophy, Mrs. Frank L. Meagher and Mrs. Gustav Kogel.

Symphony Rehearsal
The public rehearsal of the Ulster County Symphony Orchestra held last Sunday afternoon was so successful that the public is invited again to attend the rehearsal on Sunday afternoon, March 3. The rehearsal will be held in the Leventhal building at 2 o'clock.

With spring just around the corner three members of the Married Women's Club show above what the matron will wear for formal spring balls. They are Mrs. Kenneth LeFever, Mrs. Dorr Monroe and Mrs. Lewis Fursman. The fashions were shown at the annual spring fashion show of the club at the Y. W. C. A. Thursday afternoon.

New spring daytime clothes for the Easter fashion parade shown at the fashion show Thursday are modeled by Mrs. Eugene Freer, Mrs. Albert Salzmann and Mrs. Edward Hughes, above.

FIRST LADY MODELS HER EASTER OUTFITS

NOT NECESSARY FOR AN HONOR GUEST TO RETURN AN INVITATION IN KIND

No Need Ever To Do So, But Small Gift Afterward or Lunch and Matinee Would be Nice

Again I want to repeat, it is never necessary to return an invitation in kind. One makes the best return possible, and no more can be—or is—expected. And to the woman in particular, who asks: "What return can be made to a friend who gave a party in my honor? I can't give a party in her honor, so what else can I do that will seem especially nice?" Let me suggest that you ask her to lunch with you alone, either at home or elsewhere, and go with you to a matinee. If not this, you might send her a few flowers—it would have been nice to send these the day after the party had you thought about it. Or if you don't like the idea of flowers, you may be able to find something more personal that you think she would like to have. If you know of something she wants, and you can afford to get it, that will be best of all.

How Many of the Groom's Family Invited?

Dear Mrs. Post: Is a hostess always expected to invite the man's mother and his sisters to a lunch that she is giving for his bride-to-be?

Answer: If one of his sisters is a bridesmaid, she might perhaps be invited. Or if this is a very big lunch, they might all be. Usually places at table are few and three or four in-laws added to hostess and bride to start with, leaves very few places—if any—to add to the number.

Old Silver May Be Marked Again

Dear Mrs. Post: Recently a relative of my daughter's fiancé died and left all her silver to my daughter. This silver is marked on the under side of the handles and since it is not an ornate pattern my daughter would like to have it all marked on the top side. What initial, or initials should be used, or do you think the initials underneath should be repeated on top?

Answer: In her place, I would leave the initials on the underside as they are, for the sake of sentiment, and mark the upper side with the initials or monogram of my married name. Since this silver has come from the groom's family, it should certainly be marked with the last initial of his name. Whether she has it marked with her first initials or his, or theirs together, she alone can decide.

Keeping the old marking in the back is not unusual. Many pieces of old silver are marked two or three times. I have seen any number of "old silver" trays and platters and tea sets, which have through many generations acquired quite a collection of markings.

Grange Official Praise Snow Work

An indication of the impression made by the efficient snow removal operations of the board of public works during February on the visiting and traveling public in passing through Kingston is contained in a communication received by Mayor Heiselman while in Florida and forwarded to this city.

The communication received by the mayor in Florida and forwarded to Thomas Miller, secretary to the mayor, is from H. M. Stanley, secretary of the State Grange, and reads as follows:

Hon. Conrad J. Heiselman, The Breakers Hotel, Palm Beach, Florida.

Dear Mayor Heiselman: On Wednesday the 22, the Executive Committee of the N. Y. State Grange visited the city of Kingston for the purpose of considering it as a possible meeting place of the State Grange in December, 1940.

The city was almost knee deep in slush when we arrived in the evening of the 21st, so that we could hardly get from our car into the hotel. Everything looked at its worst. I can assure you. When we arose the next morning we found the streets completely cleaned and one could walk across with no rubbers on. I am sure that we were very much impressed with the demonstration. I do not know that it had anything to do with it or not, but to make a long story short, we have decided to come to Kingston in December and remain with you for four or five days.

I hope you will not feel that your absence had anything to do with this decision this year but on the contrary we greatly missed meeting you again.

Your city representatives were most cordial and our committee members were impressed with everything and everybody. Early next fall one of us will come to Kingston for the purpose of making final arrangements for our convention.

With every good wish, I am Cordially yours,

H. M. Stanley, Secretary New York State Grange

Perennial Vegetables Yield Year After Year

When you start a vegetable garden this year select a place for those few vegetables which are perennial and will be permanent features of the garden. The two important ones are asparagus and rhubarb, the former far the more important. It will last a lifetime if properly cared for.

Only a few clumps of rhubarb will be needed and they may be planted in any convenient corner of the domain, as their season is brief and use limited. A third perennial is the multiplier onion, which gives the earliest of all young onions and may become a garden standard and obviate the planting of sets each year.

The home asparagus bed is one of the real economies computed on a cash basis that the vegetable garden can provide. Universally liked, its purchase in the course of a season means real money. A supply of plants sufficient to establish a big bed costs less than two or three bunches of the vegetable in the market. Once established you will always have a supply.

If no other space seems convenient to give up for this purpose the asparagus can be planted in a row slung along a boundary line or fence and utilized as a hedge of no mean ornamental quality later in the season.

Asparagus requires soil as rich and deep as you can make it at the start. The roots require deep and careful planting to become established with reasonable speed. They should not be closer than two feet apart in the rows with rows three or more feet apart for their best development. This plant is a heavy feeder. Dig a wide hole a foot deep and form a mound six inches tall in the center of the hole. Set the plant on this and spread the roots out like the spokes of a wheel. Fill in the soil and firm it well and the asparagus bed is started. Do not start cutting until its second season.

The bed should be started as early as the ground can be worked to get the plants established and in vigorous growth their first season.

Two Collisions Reported to Police

Chester A. Baltz of 70 Clinton avenue reported to the police department Thursday afternoon that while driving his car on Henry street, near Sterling street, his car was in collision with a bicycle ridden by Charles Miller of 23 Prospect street.

Miller, according to the report, was bruised on the left leg and his bicycle damaged.

Shortly after 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon Warren Powell of 129 Cedar street, driving a truck of the Grand Union Tea Company, reported that his truck was in collision with an auto driven by Anthony Crispino of 54 Gill street, at the intersection of Hasbrouck and Delaware avenues. Both machines were damaged, but the occupants were not injured.

GAS SNUFFS OUT PLANE FIRE—With a great roar a blast of carbon dioxide gas shoots out toward a flaming airplane motor, in a demonstration staged for the Bureau of Standards in Washington, D. C., to show a new C.A.A. device for combating the fire menace in aviation. The gas extinguished the blaze in a 900-horsepower engine within five seconds.

SAFETY'S A BURNING QUESTION—Blazing merrily, a 900-horsepower plane engine is propped before a wind tunnel from which blows air at a speed of 70 m.p.h., in a demonstration staged at Washington, D. C., to show a new Civil Aeronautics Authority device. Soon after above was made, a blast of carbon dioxide gas extinguished the flames within five seconds.

LASS FROM ARGENTINA—Keeping honors within her family, Rosita Maria Martinez (above), 13, was named queen of the Buenos Aires carnival, just as her twin sister was named last year. She wears the costume of a Spanish dancer.

HE FIGHTS—BUT WHY?—Versatile Arturo Godoy, the Chilean heavyweight who stayed with Joe Louis for 15 rounds, has talents not limited to the ring, as proved by this view of Godoy and his attractive wife doing a tango in New York. Godoy and the little woman, Liddy, have stage ambitions. They do the tango, rhumba and conga.

VETERAN—George S. Messersmith (above), 56, new U. S. ambassador to Cuba, has spent 25 years in the diplomatic service and state department. He was born in Fleetwood, Pa.

LET'S HAVE QUIET, PLEASE—Beneath a bewigged Adolf Hitler sit two London clubmen NOT discussing military secrets, thanks to the warning of this and many other posters distributed in England to caution the public against careless talking. The British government has warned the populace against divulging information of possible use to the enemy.

HOPE SPRINGS ETERNAL AMONG ROOKIES—With dreams of a season in the big league, these Cuban baseball players listen attentively as Joe Cambrio (center), Washington scout, gives them tips at the Senators camp in Orinda, Fla. Left to right: Arturo Castro, pitcher; Roberto Ortiz, outfielder and pitcher; Louis Minsal, 3rd base; George Torres, outfielder.

MOUNTAIN FLOWS LIKE A RIVER—Down the slopes of the upper Rhone valley comes a landslide of rocks, mud and shale, threatening the little village of Saxe, Switzerland, whose inhabitants fled for their lives. They'd been betting with other neighboring villagers as to whose village would slide the farthest down the mountain. They won—to their regret.

MY, SUCH MANNERS!—All those deportment lessons he'd learned from the keeper at St. Louis zoo seem to have been forgotten by Jiggs, 7, when he found he couldn't get his oatmeal fast enough just using that spoon.

POINTED CRITICISM—Finger-wagging Dorothy Gish gave her sister Lillian some friendly advice about the latter's acting after a performance in Chicago. Many hearts throbbed to the Gish Girls in the silent movie days.

Sphas, Washington Are Tied, Celtics Out of the Running

The Philadelphia Sphas and Washington are tied for first place in the American Basketball League race for the President's Trophy and the purse of $500 awarded to the members of the team finishing in first place at the end of the regular playing season.

Last week Philadelphia defeated Washington away from home and broke even with Baltimore in a pair of games. Washington, after losing to Philadelphia, defeated the New York Jewels in two contests and knocked the Troy Celtics out of the running by administering a defeat Wednesday last on the Collar City runway.

On Saturday, March 2, the regular season may be terminated. The two most important games of the season to date are to be played on that evening in Convention Hall, Philadelphia. In one game Baltimore meets the Washington Brewers and in the other clash the New York Jewels oppose the Sphas. If both Philadelphia and Washington are victorious, the breaking of the tie will be ordered at as early a date as possible, all of which will be acted upon at a meeting to be held immediately following both games.

In the event that the New York Jewels triumph over Philadelphia and Baltimore defeats Washington, the Jewels will still have two remaining games with Baltimore in order to give the New Yorkers a chance at a three cornered tie. The first of these games will be played at New York on Sunday, March 3.

If either Philadelphia or Washington emerge triumphant, the Jewels will have no mathematical possibility of a tie, and its games with Baltimore will then be dropped and the final playoff series started on Sunday, March 3 instead, with Baltimore appearing at the First Regiment Armory in New York against the Jewels.

On Sunday afternoon at Washington, Troy will meet the Brewers in the first of the playoff series regardless of the outcome of the previous night's games.

Artillery Basketeers to Play White Eagle Quintet Tonight

Tonight at White Eagle Hall, Delaware avenue, it'll be the Polish cagers, managed by Frank Wojciechowski, against the basketball representatives of Headquarters Battery, 156th Field Artillery.

This game is expected to furnish plenty of action as these bitter rivals take off in the first game of their series brought about by the challenges hurled by Johnny Dittus of the Artillerymen.

Dittus said, "We've been trying to get the White Eagles into a court for a long time and to tonight's night. Even though our opponents will be on their home court, I think we can take them over."

Dares issued by the National Guardsmen were ignored for a time by Manager Wojciechowski, but he finally came out and accepted them, provided the first game would be played at White Eagle Hall.

The Artillerymen lost no time in accepting the invitation to the Delaware avenue court, but made the manager of the Polish tossers agree to a series, the second game of which would be played at the armory.

"I have confidence my team will beat the Battery," said Wojciechowski, "and those series laurels will be ours after the final game," he added.

Demaret Plays Golf for Fun But Game Earns Him $6,077

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 1 (AP)—A game which Smiling Jimmy Demaret says he plays for fun has netted him $6,077 since January 1.

That's the amount the Houston, Tex., golf professional has won on the winter circuit, and includes $700 top prize money for copping the 54-hole St. Petersburg Open yesterday with a score of 211.

"When I start worrying over my shots and getting mad at myself I'm going to give up tournament golf and go back to work," Demaret declared.

And the young pro demonstrated, in the final round that he meant what he said about not taking the game too seriously. Galleries stood with mouths agape as Jimmy invited anyone to step up and sink the four-foot putt that meant first money, his third consecutive links conquest and his fifth in nine tournaments this year.

As Demaret and Byron Nelson, National Open champion, teed off on the last hole, only one stroke separated them. Nelson put his iron approach within eight feet of the cup, and Demaret, four feet from the hole. After carefully lining up the putt, Nelson sent it squarely into the hole for a birdie three, giving him a 60, two under par, and a 54-hole total of 212.

"Would somebody like to sink this one for me?" asked Demaret, the brim of his hat at a jaunty angle. There was no response and the Texan lined it up, took his stance and stroked the ball into the cut for 71, even par, and 211.

But success doesn't impress Demaret, except that it's a lot of fun. And as long as he can keep from taking himself too seriously he will continue on a vacation from his combination job of head pro and greenskeeper at the Braeburn Country Club in Houston and play tournament golf.

"I'm going down to Miami for the four-ball, then I'm heading home to go to work," he said. Nelson received $450 for second place and Stanley Horne of Montreal, Canada, third with 213, won $350.

Tied for fourth at 214, Jim Turnesa of Providence, R. I., Ben Hogan of White Plains, N. Y., E. J. Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., and Sam Snead of Shawnee, Pa., got $210 each.

Armstrong Boxes Garcia Tonight

Los Angeles, March 1 (AP)—Seeking to advance still another rung up pugilism's ladder of fame, welterweight Champion Henry Armstrong climbs into the ring tonight and faces Ceferino Garcia, claimant of the world's middleweight crown and one of the deadliest punchers in the business.

Slated for 10 rounds with Garcia, a New York-California recognized 160-pound title at stake, the bout is to begin around 10 p. m. (PST).

Promoter Charlie MacDonald, matchmaker for Hollywood's American Legion Stadium, predicted a crowd of 35,000 would jam Gilmore Stadium if the weather remains clear as expected, and gate receipts would flirt with the $100,000 mark.

Candidates for the race were to be named through the entry box shortly before noon today.

Officials at Santa Anita Park prepared to handle a record crowd of 70,000 or more for the sixth running of the rich classic tomorrow, and indications pointed to clear skies and a fast track for the race.

The Seabiscuit-Kayak threat remained a probable six-to-five betting choice over a brilliant field of stake horses named for the mile and one-quarter race.

Five Are Dead in California Floods

San Francisco, March 1 (AP)—A torrent from a broken dike drowned five persons in one family Meridian today, bringing to nine the toll of death from northern California's five-day flood.

Four deaths occurred earlier in the week; two persons were missing, and more than 5,000 have been forced from their inundated homes.

In the Pacific northwest, winds and floods struck, causing two deaths in Oregon, and one in Washington.

A levee at Meridian, 60 miles north of Sacramento, gave way early after midnight, and residents fled to higher ground.

Caught in the flood, an automobile carrying six persons was swept over by the waters. Only one of the six escaped.

Those reported dead were Mrs. Frank Flearty; her daughter, Mary; her daughter, and a small child. The Carmelites, Frank Flearty, rescued by another motorist, the breaking of the dike, causing their deaths, was believed to have saved the city of Colusa from peril. The breach eased the pressure of back water at Colusa, about eight miles to the north.

House Moves Toward Vote On Stream Pollution Control

Washington, March 1 (AP)—The House was told today that President Roosevelt might veto a pending stream pollution control bill providing for interstate compacts unless the compact was subjected to congressional ratification.

Chairman Bland (D-Va.) of House merchant marine committee reminded his colleagues that the President disapproved a fisheries bill last year because requirement for such ratification was omitted.

As the House moved toward a vote on the legislation, which would set up a pollution control division in the public health service and empower it to cooperate with the states on control measures, Rep. Mundt (R-S.D.) announced the House rivers and harbors committee had agreed to a revised form of his amendment to prohibit new pollution of navigable waters without the division's approval.

Blank, who told the House he had been trying for 21 years to get an anti-stream pollution measure enacted, declared the trouble in the past was that the bills presented had been "too drastic." He said the pending legislation offered a "sane and constructive" approach to the problem.

The Senate was in recess today, but one of its commerce subcommittees became a focal point of popular interest at the Capitol as Senator Tobey (R-N. H.) pressed consideration of his resolution for elimination of census questions dealing with the salaries and wages of private citizens.

Tobey told the committee that not only had he received hundreds of protests against the question, now scheduled to be asked in the April census, but also that he had received complaints from divorced women about questions bearing on their marital status.

At a meeting of the House agriculture committee Chairman Jones (D-Tex.) raised the question whether a form of governmental price-fixing might not be a better way to aid farmers than any other offered. He emphasized, however, that he was not advocating such an idea.

W. L. Clayton, Houston, Tex., cotton broker, appeared before the Senate finance committee, considering continuation of the reciprocal trade program, to testify that abandonment of the program would be "a step backward."

William H. Kennedy, visited the late home and recited the Rosary, at 8:45 Kingston Council, K. of C., led by Grand Knight Joseph Stout, called and were led in the recitation of the Rosary by their chaplain, the Rev. Henry E. Herdegen. The responses at the Mass were by the children's choir. At the offertory of the Mass, Thomas Dolan sang "O Salutaris," and at the conclusion rendered "Ave Maria." The casket bearers were Frederick Albert, George Craig, Thomas Enright, Patrick Gilfoyle, Jacob Ennist and Robert Gilfoyle. The cortege was accompanied to St. Mary's cemetery by the Rev. William H. Kennedy, who pronounced the final absolution at the grave as the body was laid to rest in the family plot.

Charles L. Ronk, 73, well-known undertaker and garage owner of Wallkill, died Wednesday evening at his home in that village. He was seized with a stroke on February 1, and had been ill since then. The deceased was born September 19, 1867, near Rutsonville in the town of Gardiner, a son of Sylvanus T. Ronk and Anna Margaret Merritt. When 17 years old he left the farm and for several years was at New Paltz and Pine Bush as a carpenter and wheelwright. In 1886 he worked with Joseph C. Evans, his brother-in-law, in the undertaking business at Wallkill, until the latter's death. In 1911 he formed an undertaking partnership with Elbert Roosa until the latter's death in 1911 when he took over the business. For several years he has been assisted by his son, Joseph Addison Ronk. In 1892 Mr. Ronk married Estella Upright of Shawangunk, who died two and one-half years ago. He is survived by three sons, Clarence S., Charles B., and J. Addison, all of Wallkill, and one daughter, Anna Margaret, wife of Fred D. Lynch, of Deposit; also by two sisters, Mrs. Mary Newkirk of Gardiner and Mrs. William McCord of Syosset, L. I. There are four grandchildren, Charles Leonard Ronk of Wallkill, Charles Paul Lynch and Elizabeth Jane Lynch of Deposit, and Marilyn Ardell Ronk of Wallkill. He was a member of the Wallkill Reformed Church and one of the early members of the Wallkill Fire Department. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the late home. The Rev. Frederick R. Bosch and the Rev. William E. Webster will officiate. Burial will be made in the Bruynswick Rural cemetery at Shawangunk.

Ireland Will Participate
New York, March 1 (AP)—Ireland will participate again in the New York World's Fair, Mayor La Guardia announced today on the basis of a message from Premier Eamon De Valera.

An Awning Fire
The fire department was called out at 5:30 o'clock this morning for a fire in the awning in front of the Central Bakery at 474 Broadway. The fire was thought to have started from a lighted cigarette being thrown on the awning by some one passing the bakery.

Stocks Down in Irregular Market
Two business indices showed a rise last week. Barron's index, showing the physical volume of business and adjusted for long-term industry and population growth, stood at 82.8 per cent of normal for the week ended February 24, a rise from the 82.1 per cent of the previous week. Carloadings for the week totaled 592,032 cars, the drop of 12,892 from the previous week being less than seasonal. Carry-over from the preceding week, when storms curtailed business, helped.

Stock averages closed off Thursday in an irregular market, although changes were small, losses being largest in the case of the utility issues, in which there was some selling on announcement that S. E. C. had started integration proceedings. In the Dow-Jones averages industrials showed a net loss for the day of .02, to 146.54; rails were off .05, to 30.48 and utility volumes were up somewhat from Wednesday, to 620.00 shares. One commentator sees the European situation as the principal concern in the markets, with the tension becoming greater as time approaches for greater activity in the theatre of war and expresses doubt that the market will long continue to move in the narrow range that has characterized it for some time past.

Wheat and cotton sold off yesterday. Cotton closed unchanged to off three points and wheat futures were off as much as 1/4 cent a bushel on mixed trade reports. World sugar futures led a general upturn in most staples as the commodity index rose .18 point. Silk futures were higher.

Safeway Stores declared a dividend of 75 cents on common. Firststone Tire & Rubber voted 25 cents. New York City Omnibus Corp. pays 75 cents on common. Anheuser-Busch voted dividend of $1.

It is stated that seven republics, including the United States, have indicated informal approval of the proposition for the creation of a $100,000,000 International Bank. At least five of the republics must join in a minimum of subscription of 145 shares at $100,000 each before the bank can be put into operation.

Net income of New York Telephone Co. was up sharply in 1939. Earnings were $35,370,799, equal to $8.49 a share on 4,213,000 shares of common stock outstanding. This compares with net in 1938 of $29,377,181, or $6.97 a share.

Stock transactions on the New York Stock Exchange in February totaled 13,470,755 shares, smallest total for the month since 1921.

Republicans Hold Fast To Proposed Budget Cut
Albany, N. Y., March 1 (AP)—Republican majority legislative leaders stood fast today by their proposed reduced state budget which Governor Lehman termed "deceptive and dishonest," but some party members openly revolted because of the loss of revenue to New York city.

Following closely the Democratic executive's denunciation of the "economy" plan intended to obviate necessity of a $15,000,000 personal income tax boost, the hitherto solid Republican front collapsed as three of the party's five New York city assemblymen announced opposition.

Perley C. Morse points to Kerhonkson sign-post which has attracted national attention.

Morse Says He Christened Kerhonkson's Cross Roads

Kerhonkson, March 1.—Broadway and 42nd street, New York city, is one of the world's busiest and most colorful intersections—the focal point of the glittering Great White Way.

Broadway and 42nd street, Kerhonkson, is the busiest corner in this bustling little village—the junction of the Minnekaqua Trail and Route 209.

The local intersection was dubbed facetiously after the Gotham site 27 years ago and since has become nationally famous. Long use of the names has made them official.

Countless tourists, including thousands of New Yorkers, have passed through Kerhonkson since the streets were named in 1913 and have gotten a hearty chuckle out of the incongruous sign-post and have told the story from coast to coast.

Perley C. Morse, proprietor of an inn on the southwest corner of the cross-roads, claims the distinction of christening the streets. A native of Worcester, Mass., he lived in Kingston for about 10 years before coming to Kerhonkson.

The smash hit that the street names have made is proved by the fact that an average of one sign-post a year is "swiped" by souvenir hunters.

"It costs a little to replace the signs at least once, and sometimes twice, each summer, but it is good advertising for the village," said Mr. Morse yesterday.

He said he has had requests from all over the country for postcard pictures of the street corner and sign.

A similar sign-post graces the property occupied by Frank Shonger on the southeast corner of Kerhonkson's "Times Square."

New Paltz Fire Mystery Solved

The mystery as to who set fire to a barn at New Paltz, which burned late Wednesday night, was cleared up this morning, according to Corporal Norman Baker and Trooper Andrew Klein, who with Trooper John Metzger, of the B. C. I., questioned Richard Lynch, 23, of New Paltz. The troopers stated this noon that Lynch had signed a statement admitting his responsibility. They added that Lynch would be arraigned today before Justice I. C. Barnes of New Paltz on a charge of arson.

The burned barn, which was vacant, was the property of Mrs. Cora Wadsworth of New Paltz and stood near the R. R. tracks opposite the Millham Coopershop building. The old Yeaple Coopershop next door to the barn also burned.

Corporal Baker, who took Lynch into custody on suspicion, said that the latter admitted that he burned the barn because he had had some trouble with Mrs. Wadsworth, who lives nearby. He stated, according to Corporal Baker, that he had scattered kerosene in the barn about 11 o'clock Wednesday night and then touched a match to it. The fire evidently burned slowly, as it was not until some time later, in the early hours of Thursday morning, that the fire was discovered and the alarm given.

Milder temperatures of Thursday afternoon melted the ice and snow on many of the sidewalks and during the night when the temperature dropped below freezing the melted snow froze into a glare of ice that made walking very slippery and treacherous this morning.

According to the records in the city engineer's office February closed with a total snowfall in Kingston of 23½ inches, which is equivalent to 2.37 inches of rain. The total snowfall so far this year up to the time of the present storm was 30½ inches which, with two inches falling in December, made the total snowfall 32½ inches.

Superintendent Ernest A. Steuding of the board of public works said this morning that nearly 24 cubic miles of snow had been removed from the streets since the blizzard on St. Valentine's Day. He said a better idea of this tremendous task may be had by considering the distance between Kingston and Saugerties and the removal of snow from both sides of the highway.

This snow removal work, he said, was completed by the city's three snow loaders working 90 per cent of the time at night.

sell "has been invited by our department of philosophy to teach courses in mathematics and logic. . . . And not to discourse on his personal ethical and moral views, to which he, as an individual, is entitled."

John T. Flynn, economist and member of the college administrative committee, described Russell as "a man of the highest character, whose morals will compare favorably with those of Bishop Manning."

Russell, who joins the faculty in 1941 and now is in Los Angeles, said:

"I have no wish to answer Bishop Manning's attack in detail. Any one who decides in youth to think and speak honestly, regardless of hostility and misinterpretation, expects such attacks and soon learns it is best to ignore them."
